How long does the presentence investigation take?

The sentencing timelines for the District of Idaho are found in Idaho Criminal Rule 32.1. Per Rule 32.1, sentencing should occur no less than 70 days following guilty/nolo contendere plea or guilty verdict. The initial presentence investigation report will be disclosed to the government and defense counsel at least 35 days before the date of sentencing. The parties have up to 14 days to review the report. Any objections must be filed with the the Court during that time. Seven days prior to sentencing, a final Presentence Report and Addendum to the Presentence Report will be filed with the Court and available for the sentencing judge and counsel.
